

Jack Shockley Warriors for Peace, Inc.
Website Accessibility Statement

Jack Shockley Warriors for Peace, Inc. (“we,” “us,” “our”) are committed to ensuring our clients and potential clients can readily access information about the products and services we provide on our website. We are currently undertaking endeavors to comply with the relevant portions of World Wide Web Consortium’s Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 2.1, Level AA” (“WCAG-2.1 AA”), a set of guidelines adopted by a private group designed to maximize accessibility of web content. Conformance with these guidelines will help make the website user friendly for all.

Please note our website may link to, or interface with, third-party websites we do not control. These third-party vendors may not have undertaken the efforts we have to comply with WCAG-2.1 AA standards. Because we cannot guarantee the accessibility of third-party websites and are not able to make accommodations on such websites, we encourage you to contact their customer service if any assistance is needed.

In order to maximize accessibility with our customers and potential customers, we are working with our vendors to encourage them to voluntarily comply with these standards. As the law and accessibility standards continue to change and we strive to deliver the most up-to-date content online, please understand our efforts to improve online accessibility are ongoing.

We encourage you to report any accessibility issues you may encounter by contacting us at admin@warriors4peace.org so we can assist you. We also encourage you to contact us to determine if any alternative communication methods or accessibility formats are available.

We thank you for your assistance in enhancing the accessibility of our website and we look forward to serving your needs.